

Biography of Fabio Feruglio

Graduate in Industrial Technology Engineering and Economic Organization at the University of Udine (cum laude) in 1985.

Currently Director of Friuli Innovazione, Centre for Research and Technology Transfer, since April 2006.

From 1985 to 1998, in Andersen Consulting (now Accenture) international company, worldwide leader in management consulting. In Andersen Consulting I have worked with increasing responsibility and autonomy on the main customers of the company, both in national and international engagement, in many different sectors banking, chemical, pharmaceutical, manufacturing, oil, cement, fashion, always managing large business transformation projects (business process reengineering, change management, strategy, information and organization systems plan, design and delivery).

In 1998 I left the company as Partner and joined Arthur Andersen, where I set up and started a new line of consulting services, and in less than three years I built a new team of about 100 people and 10 million Euro turnover, working as a partner of Arthur Andersen Worldwide Organization (international partnership with 120,000 people).

As Arthur Andersen Italia in 2002 became a member of the Deloitte network, I kept working as international Partner with the most relevant clients and projects, both nationally and internationally, until 2006.
